ADVENTURES IN ATTITUDES®

In a national training survey, companies were asked to choose which ranked higher: employee aptitude, including hard skills and technical competencies, or employee attitude, including motivation, commitment, and communication. Nearly 60 percent of respondents ranked attitude as the number-one priority. Coping with the continuous changes of today's downsized, team-oriented, increasingly diverse workplace has left many people confused and fearful. As attitudes deteriorate, so do levels of commitment and performance.

EMPOWER EMPLOYEES TO CHOOSE THEIR OWN ATTITUDES

Adventures in Attitudes® is designed to help people understand that they can choose how to perceive and respond to events around them, and that it's in their control to change a negative outlook to one that's positive. By establishing personal responsibility and accountability in the midst of change, individuals learn that passive resistance can be transformed into high-energy performance. Using small-group interaction, shared personal experiences, individual and group exercises, and facilitator-led discussion, Adventures in Attitudes provides a remarkable process for self-discovery.
